SALESBEAT

Big-Data-Freak with broad interest for first Start-Up employee

We as Salesbeat are searching for our first employee in the role of a data scientist with a broad technical interest who can start working as soon as possible.

At Salesbeat we want to change the daily information retrieval process of sales people around the globe. For this goal, we are searching for somebody with the following skills and mindset:

- Highly motivated and willing to make an impact in the field of structuring publicly available data and therefore getting rid of Google in that regard
- Know how in handling big data and experience in this field
- Knowledge in crawling techniques (e.g. News and company websites,…)
- Experience with machine learning
- Backend Language is python
- Big plus: Already experience or interest in the field of Natural Language Processing.

What we can offer to you:

- Chance to bring all your knowledge that you have into the product – and not just the tiny bits your boss asks for
- Company shares (amount and timeframe to be discussed)
- Fixed salary
- Lots of freaking roller coaster moments – therefore a "never stop" mentality is needed
- Possibility to build up a data scientist and NLP – team under your guidance

Our company is situated in Linz and communication is key. However, it's not a criterion for exclusion if you are not living in Linz, but something that should be discussed.

In case you are interested please drop us a mail at office@mysalesbeat.com so we can have a call and further discussions.
